About Seminar

Research promotion is an important business for academics. People do research with various motives- altruism, career advancement, job promotion, fulfilling a minimum requirement for annual performance and so forth. Dissemination of research findings constitutes an essential part of the scientific research process, and writing in high impact scientific journals becomes a means of communication of research findings. This one-day seminar deals with holistic research skills from journal publications to research consultancies.

The seminar covers the importance of research planning, journal publishing, submitting proposals and carrying out research consultancies. The seminar extends by providing guidelines on identification of research agencies, research schemes and research tools.
